FIM Endurance World Championship

2022 Suzuka 8 Hours

Classification after final technical controls

Following the 43rd Suzuka 8Hours race, which is part of the 2022 FIM Endurance World Championship, technical controls were performed on the machines that were classified in the first ten positions. Some parts were sealed and brought back to FIM headquarters in order to carry out more detailed analyses and to be compared with the homologation reference parts.

The results of the race remained provisional until all these parts were inspected by the FIM.

These additional inspections have now been completed and the 10 machines subjected to inspection were all found to be compliant with the FIM Technical Regulations.

The classification of the 2022 Suzuka 8Hours race is therefore confirmed.
